Principal's Message

Courage and Values

Courage is held as one of the highest ideals in American culture. It is one of our cherished traditions. Each of us is asked to display courage each day, but we usually don't recognize it by that name.

By one dictionary definition, courage is "that quality of mind which enables one to face difficulties and danger with firmness or without fear." From this we can see that courage can be demonstrated in different ways.

If it were broken down into categories, or different kinds of courage, we would have a long list that would label the various types.

On this list we would surely have the courage to establish a set of values. We cannot do this with preaching or indoctrination. It must come from within the individual. All of us as Americans must assume some responsibility to stop the drift to apathy and indifference that is creeping into our society. I would urge each of you to have the courage to establish a set of values, so that you can live a life guided by the highest of ideals.

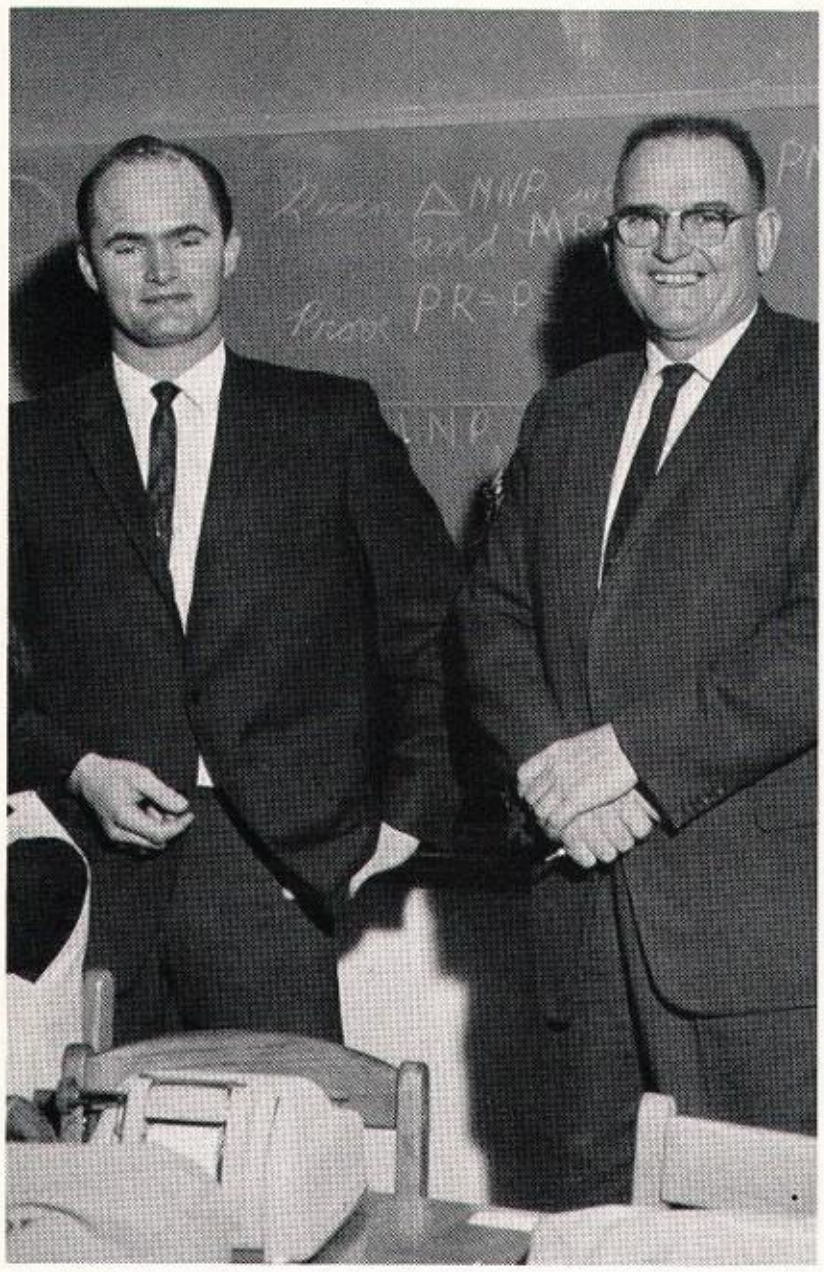
The office gained a part-time secretary this year. Mrs. Betty High was on hand to help Mrs. Virginia Davis and to keep the books for the school.

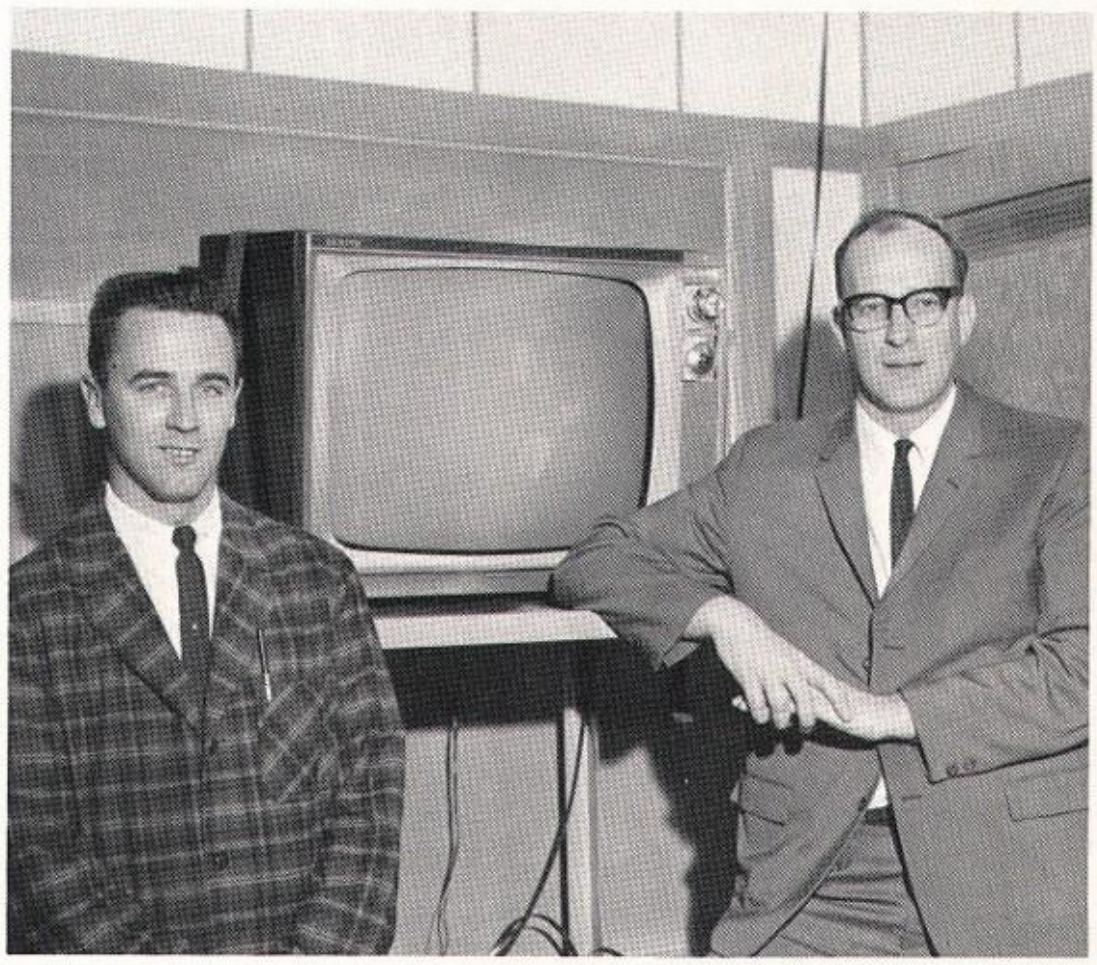
Mary Henderson and Shelia Simon aided the counselors and secretaries this year through typing and bookkeeping. A major portion of Shelia's work was to keep the books for the student body as treasurer.

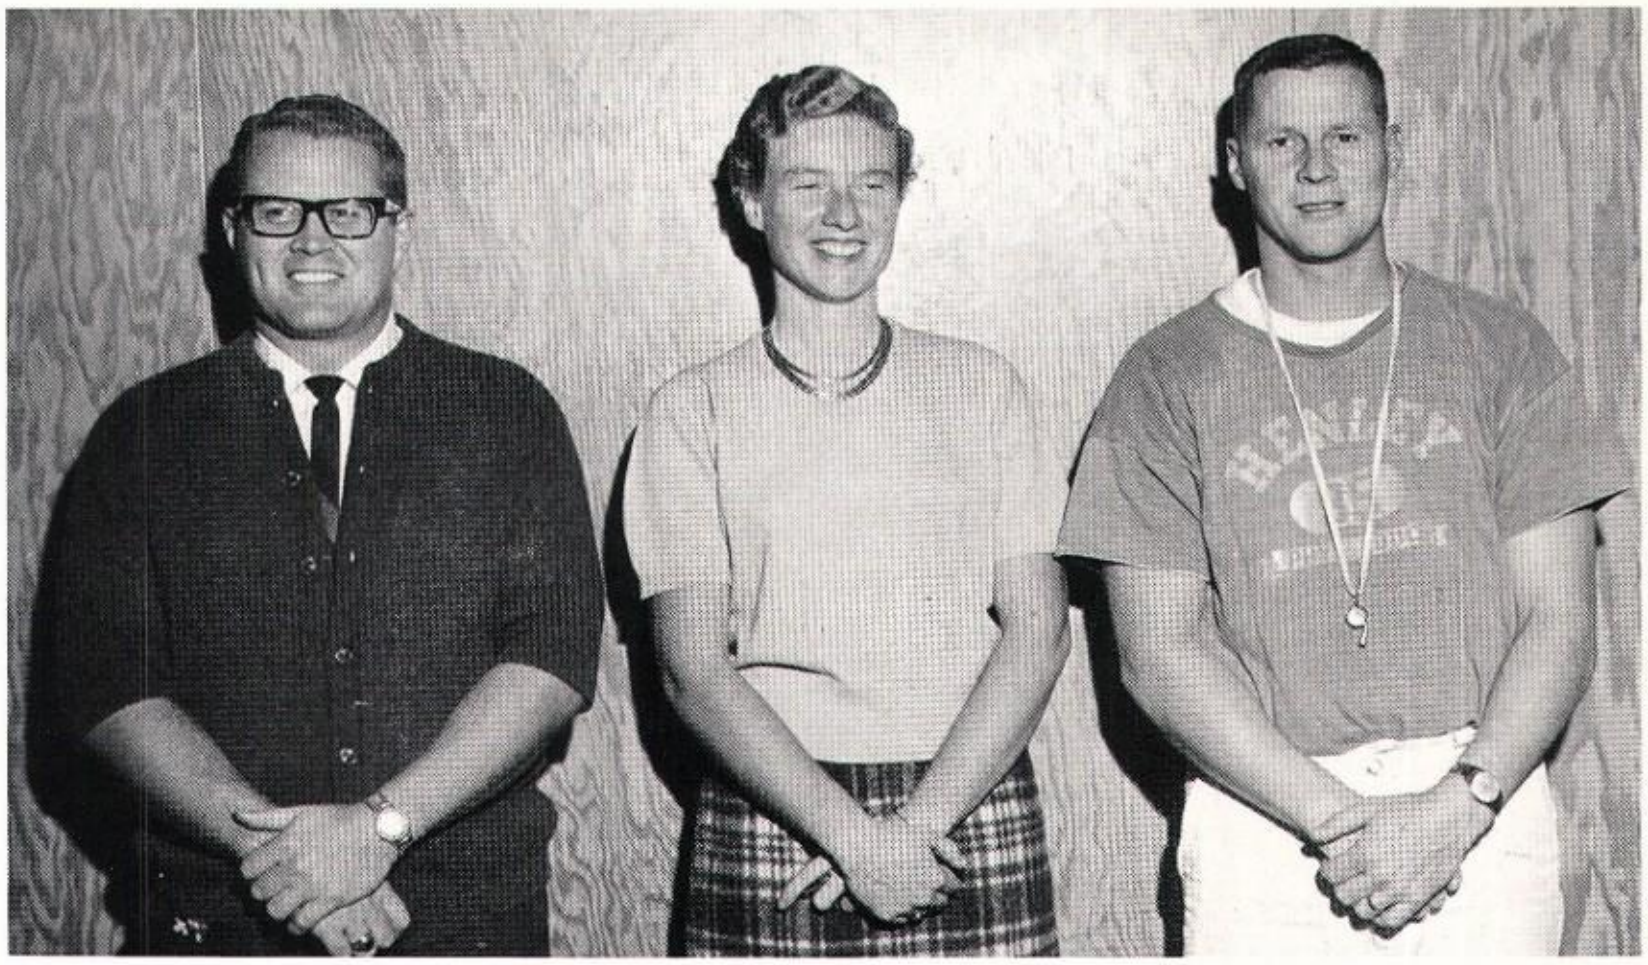


Secondary business courses were taught by Monte Dehlinger and Stanley Kendall.

All eyes, including Mr. Dehlinger's, were on the textbook as the typing class went through a drill.

Jack Henry and David Dougherty taught French via television and classroom.





Through the efforts of Bob Creed, Miss Marie Longfellow, and Jerry Johnson, Henley's physical education program received a lift.

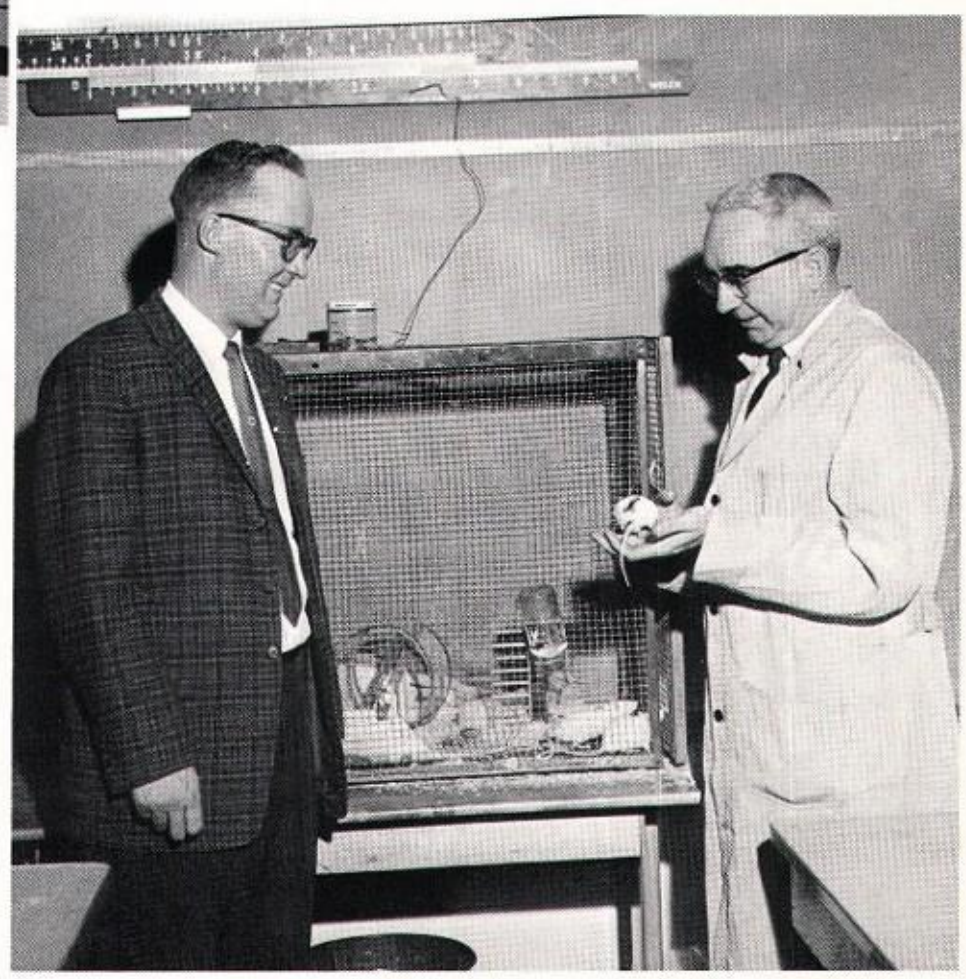
A big part of counselors George Hanson and Mrs. Margaret Heyden's job was to assist the seniors in preparing for jobs or college.

Students are instructed in social science by Mr. Dan Kelleher, Mr. Jack Henry, and Mr. Leonard Weber.

Teaching English are Miss Cleora Rice, Mr. Don Miller, Miss Louise Mitchell, and Mrs. Marilyn Rocchio. Mrs. Geneva Duncan assists the teachers, and students as well, by serving as librarian.

Stanley Kendall, Fred Hess and Dale King do their best to teach mathematics to interested students.

Mr. Heyden helps his students with their projects.



Harlan Heyden instructs science and biology while Earl Graham teaches chemistry, physics, and advanced biology.

Mr. Termes good-naturedly explains one of the techniques of art.

Skills in Shop, Homemaking, and Arts were taught by Tom Peterson, Margaret Heyden, and Dick Termes.

Ken Ketel and Don Herbig headed the Music Department and worked diligently to make it the success it was this year.

Mr. Herbig enthusiastically directs the chorus in one of their selections.

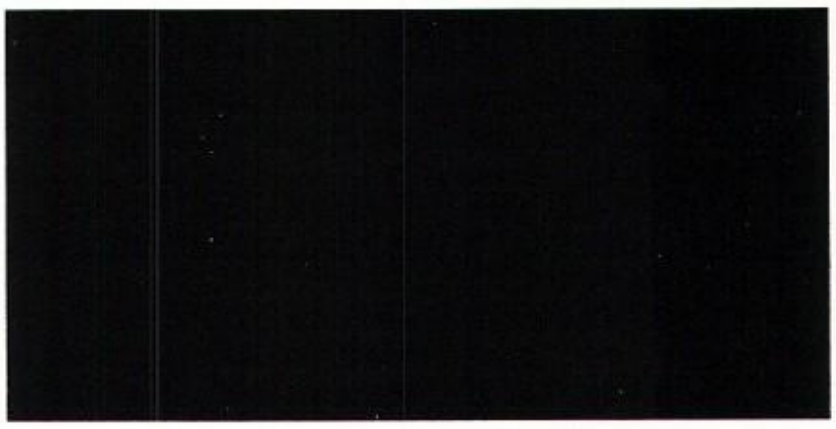
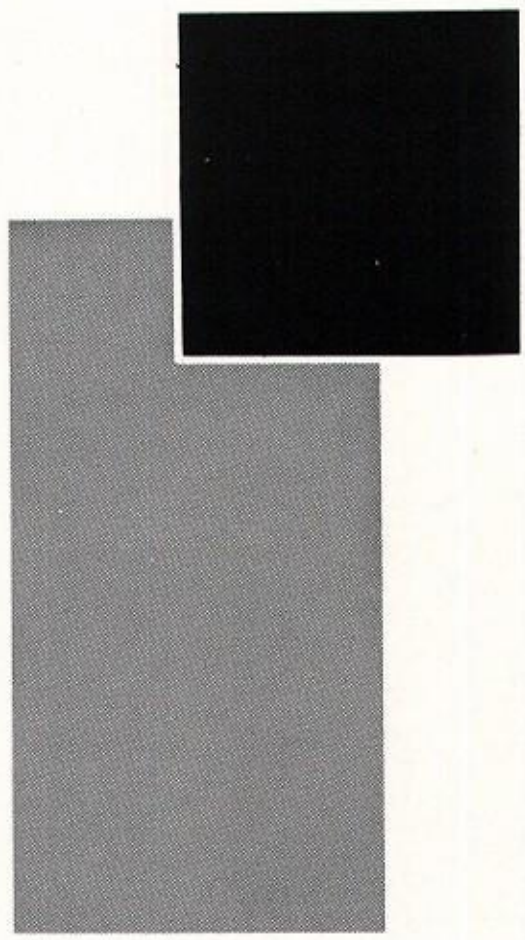
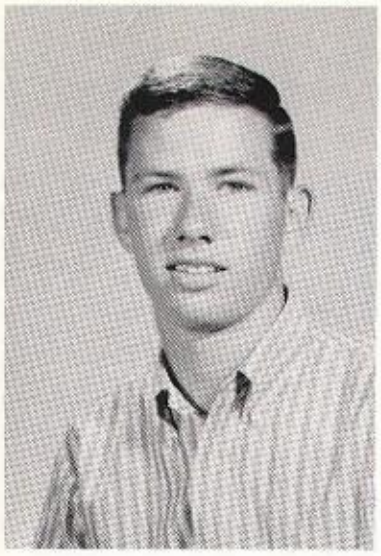
Juniors







The Junior Class led an active life during the 1964-65 school year. On September 14, the received their class rings, which to them signified their new status as upperclassmen. The two-day IOWA tests then followed on their agenda.

During half-time entertainment of the Homecoming game, dark haired Diane Royse was crowned queen for the football season. Other royalty for the class came in the form of petite Charlotte Jackson, queen candidate for the Lettermen's Carnival, who was first runner-up due to the efforts of the juniors; Ross Lamphear won the grand door prize, a color television set.

During the fall induction ceremony, ten juniors were welcomed into the National Honor Society.

Co-chairmen Barbara Marshall and Mike Umbarger headed the Junior-Senior Prom committee with the prom being the juniors' most cherished memory for years to come.

Freshmen Meet

As the class of 1968 entered Henley High School for the first time as full-fledged members, they brought with them the eagerness and willingness that come with entering upon a new adventure.

One of the first tasks they were faced with was that of electing new officers. The new officers were: Deanna Croft, president, Luther Horsley, vice-president; Shirley Daugherty, secretary; Don Alexander, treasurer; Maralea Dehlinger; student council representative; and Candee Horton, sergeant-at-arms.

After settling into their new routine, several of the members of the Freshman Class were soon in the swing of things by joining the offered clubs and activities.

The GRA initiation became the object of many freshman girls, while several boys tried out for junior varsity sports.

During the Homecoming float contest, the freshmen gained honors by winning second place. Later in the year they went on to show their school spirit by giving enthusiastic support to their carnival queen candidate, Jeri Rice. They won third place. A Christmas dance, sponsored by the class, was one of the many activities that rounded out the freshman year.

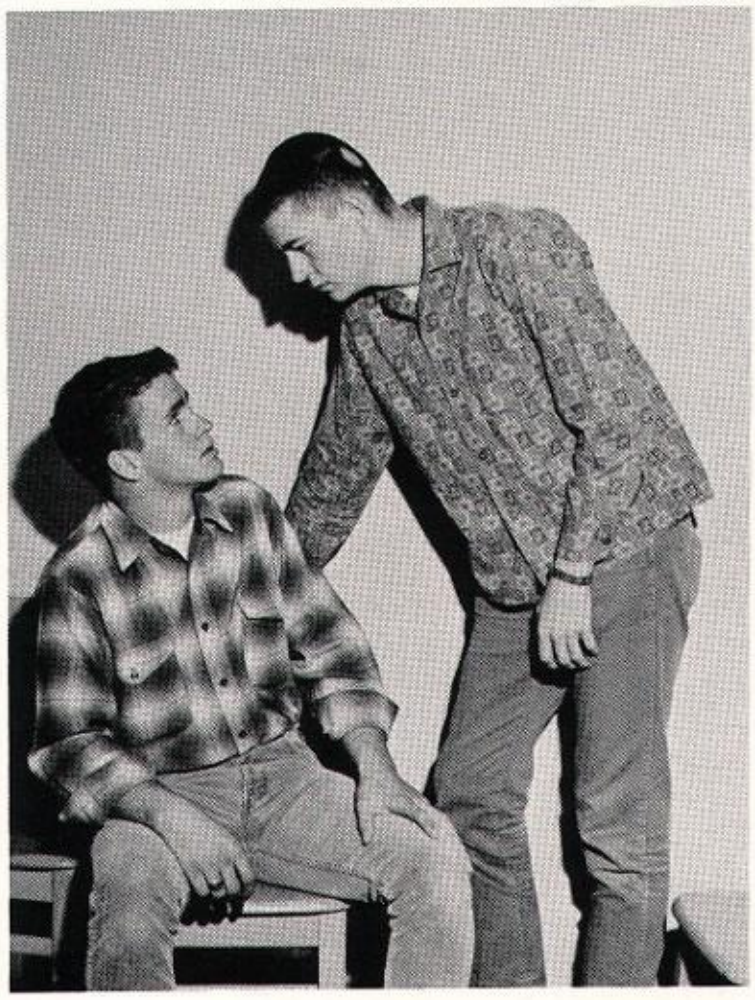
Spring Afterthoughts

Thespians Prepare Spring Play:

Shadow of Suspicion

Don't you understand



Why did you rob and kill James Hill?

(over telephone) If the police don't know how to take care of a murderer, I do.

The Thespians worked very hard to present their spring play: the story of a teenager falsely accused of murder. The reaction of friends and of the community nearly forced the entire family to leave town.

An Action Packed Sports Year

Junior Class Presents

"Everything was just perfect," commented one senior girl on the 1965 Prom. The Juniors had been working hard on it since October. First, choosing the theme, Sayonara, then designing the decorations and choosing the prom servers and the million other things. It was worth all the work. It was a "perfect" prom.

Juniors begin to decorate.

Miss Rice, Evelyn Taylor, and Sally Wenz do preliminary planning.

The Prom Servers were Nonie Dingler, Maralea Dehlinger, Deanna Croft, Jean Caldwell, and Jeri Rice.

Sayonara

Prom Chairman Mike Umbarger, Devonia Dettre, Roger Frei, and Prom Chairman Barbara Marshall.

Kriss Spielman was elected Prom Queen.
